

Privacy Policy and Terms of Use

Privacy Policy

At Identity Blitz, we are committed to safeguarding the privacy of our clients' personal data. This Privacy Policy is published as a demonstration of our respectful and diligent approach to data protection and outlines the procedures for collecting, securing, storing, processing, transferring, and utilizing the personal information we receive from our clients. This Policy applies to all data obtained via the Internet or other means, unless superseded by separate terms or privacy policies.

Legal Information

Please note that the information provided on this website is for informational purposes only and does not constitute a public offer as defined by Part 2 of Article 437 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation. For detailed information regarding pricing and service timelines, please contact our specialists directly.

The content on this website is intended solely to provide a general understanding of the topics discussed and the services offered by Identity Blitz and does not constitute professional advice. No express or implied warranties are provided regarding the accuracy or completeness of the information presented. Except where required by Russian law, Identity Blitz, its employees, and authorized representatives shall not be liable for any consequences arising from actions or inactions based on the information provided or decisions made from the website's publications.

Excerpts from third-party publications are provided solely for illustrative purposes. The information contained in these excerpts has not been verified by Identity Blitz and does not necessarily reflect our views. The inclusion of third-party excerpts does not imply endorsement by Identity Blitz.

All quotes featured on the website are included for informational or educational purposes in accordance with Article 1274 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation.

All trademarks displayed on the website are the property of their respective owners. Identity Blitz does not derive any economic or other benefits from the use of these logos and trademarks. Textual and graphic elements of the trademarks are used solely for informational purposes and may be removed upon the request of the rights holder.

Cookie Information

Cookies are small text files placed on your device by the websites you visit. They are widely used to ensure that websites function correctly or more efficiently, and to provide site owners with essential information. The use of cookies is standard practice for most websites. If you have concerns about cookie usage, you can manage or delete them via your browser settings, including removing them from your browsing history (cache) when you exit the site.

Types of Cookies

- Session Cookies: Stored in your browser only during your visit and deleted once you leave the site.
- Persistent Cookies: Remain in your browser after your session ends (unless deleted).
- Analytical Cookies: Collect and store information about your website usage—such as pages visited and error messages—without collecting personally identifiable data. These cookies are stored anonymously to help improve website performance.
- Functional Cookies: Enable the website to remember your preferences (e.g., text size, username, language, or region) and offer additional features, such as personalized pages. The data collected by these cookies is anonymous.

Use of Cookies

By using this website, you consent to the placement of cookies on your device for the purposes described above. This website employs cookies for the following purposes:

- Visitor identification through tag servers using the IP address. Cookie records contain identification data, last access time, session start time, and other relevant details. Validity period: up to 6 months.
- Visitor identification via JavaScript. Cookie records include identification data, last access time, session start time, and other relevant details. Validity period: up to 6 months.

Collected Information

Personal data refers to information that can be directly associated with an individual (e.g., name, email address, phone number) or data related to transactions involving that individual (e.g., products or services purchased).

Consent to Personal Data Processing

To comply with data protection regulations, please be advised that the contact information and other personal details you provide (hereinafter referred to as “personal data”), such as when filling out a contact form on the website, will be stored in the electronic database of Identity Blitz. By entering your personal data in the designated fields on the website, you consent to its processing in accordance with the terms and purposes set forth below.

Personal data may be collected, stored, anonymized, transferred (including cross-border transfers), accumulated, organized, copied, and updated for purposes including, but not limited to:

- Sending you information about Identity Blitz events, services, and publications.

- Establishing direct contact with you to disseminate the aforementioned information.

Identity Blitz may share your personal data exclusively with its employees and third parties who have signed confidentiality agreements. Personal data may only be disclosed in an aggregated form that prevents individual identification.

You have the right to withdraw your consent to personal data processing at any time by sending a request to info@idblitz.ru. Upon receiving your withdrawal request, the processing of your personal data will cease, except where otherwise mandated by Russian law.

Withdrawing your consent does not affect the lawfulness of any processing carried out prior to the withdrawal. Please note that revoking your consent may restrict access to certain services or features of the website.

Use of Collected Information

Identity Blitz uses personal data to manage and develop its business, understand customer needs and interests, personalize content, and improve service quality. Personal data is used, among other purposes, for:

- Communicating with and strengthening relationships with customers.
- Informing you about relevant offers, products, and services offered by Identity Blitz and its affiliates.
- Processing requests for products, services, information, and training.
- Conducting market research and evaluating the effectiveness of advertising initiatives.
- Providing support, evaluating, and enhancing Identity Blitz products and services.
- Technical administration and improving website performance.
- Processing job applications.
- Ensuring compliance with legal requirements.
- Monitoring adherence to the website's terms of use and preventing fraudulent or otherwise prohibited activities.

Transfers of personal data to third parties are conducted with all necessary protective measures as required by applicable law and Identity Blitz's data protection policy.

Access and Accuracy of Data

Identity Blitz is committed to maintaining accurate client contact information. To update or correct your contact details, please send a request to info@idblitz.ru.

Identity Blitz will implement necessary updates promptly. Before processing any changes, verification of your identity or additional information may be required. For record-keeping purposes, a copy of previous data may be retained.

Identity Blitz is dedicated to protecting client data confidentiality and actively participates in programs that safeguard the privacy of personal data. Our privacy policies are continuously updated to reflect current standards, technologies, and client feedback.

Website Support

The website is maintained by Identity Blitz.